You can make a difference in a child's life as a competent, caring educational assistant. Our program will prepare you to play a vital role in the classroom.

Program Highlights

What do you remember most about the teachers you liked best? Chances are, these teachers were empathetic, had a good sense of humour, were kind, and challenged you to fulfill your potential. They took an interest in you. As an educational assistant, these same skills and qualities will help you make a difference in a child's life.

You will spend the first semester in the Educational Assistant program learning more about yourself (self-knowledge is important when working with others), about other people, and about their communities. Computers are an important part of your work in the classroom or institutional setting, and you'll become competent in their use, to support your college and career goals. You will also have a chance to learn a whole new language - American Sign Language.

In the second and third semesters, the roles of teacher and educational assistant will be explored and more clearly defined. You'll learn how to manage behaviour, modify educational programming, support exceptional children, and assist with curriculum planning. Of course, a lot of this training is experiential, in various educational settings in the community.

During third semester, you will spend three days a week in class at Fleming and two days a week in a classroom in an area school. The final part of the program is an intensive, semester-long, practical learning experience in an educational setting or agency.

If you have already completed an Ontario College Diploma or a university degree, you may be eligible for the accelerated Educational Assistant - Advanced Standing program. You can graduate in just ten months.

Why Choose Fleming

In the 20 years plus that the Educational Assistant program has been offering training, area school boards have said this is the diploma program they want their Educational Assistants to have. In short, the Fleming program has a reputation for excellence, and well-rounded graduates.

Aboriginal Emphasis Initiative

Fleming College's Aboriginal Emphasis Initiative is an inclusive approach to providing more understanding of Aboriginal peoples, communities and nations. Work Experience

You will refine your skills as a competent, caring educational assistant during the 95 days of placement which take place during second year. You may choose to do your final practice in any community in Ontario that you wish. You will be required to submit a current police records check, which is available from your local police department upon payment of a fee.

Career Opportunities

The main employer of educational assistants is the school system, but there are also opportunities in other institutional settings offering education as part of the programming. Some of our graduates find employment as a result of their placement in their final semester and may even be offered a job prior to graduation. Educational Assistants might begin their careers working on a supply list replacing Educational Assistants who are absent. A number of Educational Assistants like the flexibility and variety that this provides, and continue with this type of employment even when offered more long-term work.

Minimum Admission Requirements
