

Mental Health and Addiction Worker Program

Build your career brand in the Mental Health and Addiction Worker Program at Fleming College. The program offers a unique applied learning experience which enables graduates to work in various areas within the field of mental health and addictions. Students can choose to build on their program of study in Mental Health and Addictions through completing the dual diploma in Social Service Worker.

There is a high demand for mental health and addictions professionals. Roles include case manager, mental health clinician, addiction counsellor, or relief staff in residential facilities or community withdrawal management services, health promotion and outreach services.
